VE Day 2020

On the 8th May 2020, it will be 75 years since VE day. There will be a "bank holiday" which means most people will be off work and lots of people will celebrate this day. This is the day where World War 2 was over in Europe because Germany had surrendered.

World War 2 went on for 6 years and many people were injured or killed. Because of this, it was a huge relief when the war was over and families were back together.

For your task this week, we would like you to write a diary entry as if you were a child on VE day. Have a look at the photo below taken on VE day. How might you be feeling? How might you be celebrating? What might your family be feeling?

The Telegraph